Mark Robinson joined SupplyCore's Executive Team as Vice President in the fall of 2014. In addition to working with staff to meet the company's legal needs, he oversees the Real Estate and Compliance departments.

Mr. Robinson has previously served as general counsel for both public and private companies, and has served on executive teams in industries ranging from commercial printing to real estate and aviation. After earning a bachelor's degree in risk management from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, he travelled the country as a consultant for a service organization, followed by graduate school at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, where he earned a JD/MBA degree. While at the law firm of Hinshaw & Culbertson in Rockford, Illinois, Mr. Robinson focused on corporate law and real estate on his journey to partnership in the firm. Following a successful sale to Reynolds & Reynolds, he joined Rubloff Development Group, a Rockford based commercial real estate developer, as VP/General Counsel/Secretary, though he quickly stepped into an operational leadership role as President of Rubloff. While in that role, Rubloff expanded into the aircraft taxi service, first with small aircraft operating under a FAA 135 certificate, and later with large aircraft through the purchase of Ryan International Airlines and its 121 certificate. Ryan provided airlift for tour operators and for USTRANSCOM, moving troops into Iraq, Afghanistan and numerous other theatres. Mr. Robinson most recently served as the Chief Operating Officer for Jet Midwest Group, a Kansas City based consortium that oversees airlines in the US and Asia, a large scale aviation parts operation, MRO and paint facility.

In Mr. Robinson's various roles, he has been responsible for legal compliance and negotiation of business terms, while also directing process improvements and productivity. At SupplyCore, he works closely with operations and business development in shaping new business activities while also directing compliance programs.
